

Welcome to a new concept in Theatre Publishing.

The Playwrights' Co-operative is a not-for-profit organization whose aims are to cut out the middle-men and profit-makers from the world of theatre publishing and give the individual playwright the opportunity to take greater control and responsibility in the marketing of their own work with all the benefits that full publication brings.

This exciting new company was launched by writers Paul Beard & Ian Hornby on 1st October 1997 and promotes the writing, by professional and amateur writers of new theatre, for both the professional and amateur stage at home and abroad.

New Theatre Publications is the trading name of the publishing company that is owned by members of The Playwrights' Co-operative.

Membership to the Co-operative is by annual subscription of £16 (for members with email - else £19) payable on the 1st October of each year; members receive a newsletter that gives opinion, details of writing opportunities, competitions, courses, etc. and an individual profile opportunity on the web site.

New Theatre Publications aims to provide the kind of service that writers need and want. Many of the services we provide to our writers are not undertaken by any other publisher.

Ask yourself these questions:

Do you know any other publisher that lets you know in advance when and where your work is being performed and obtains two complimentary tickets for you to see it in production?

WE DO!

Do you know any other publisher that pays you 70% of the performance fee?

WE DO!

Do you know any other publisher that has its complete catalogue on the Internet for World-Wide circulation?

WE DO!

Do you know any other publisher that actually promotes the writing of New Theatre and puts the needs of the writer first?

WE DO!

WHY?

Because as writers we know how tough it is for new writers to break through

Conditions of Membership

By becoming a member of The Playwrights' Co-operative you become eligible to submit plays (in electronic format, please, unless by prior agreement) to be considered for publication. Membership does not guarantee publication. All submitted plays are subjected to a reading process where they are examined from three different perspectives:

- By an established playwright;
- By an experienced theatre director;
- By a theatre critic.

This reading process is vital to our success, as it assures the marketplace that we have a quality product to offer. If accepted, the full cost of publication of a play is covered by the Co-operative. Because we are a not-for-profit organization there has to be a small charge towards the cost of running the reading service. This is not, repeat not, vanity publishing

As a member of The Playwrights' Co-operative you are required to give an undertaking to carry out the following:
To promote The Playwrights' Co-operative and New Theatre Publications.

To obtain details of all professional and amateur theatre companies in your area and submit them to us for inclusion on our direct mail database.

To pay your annual subscription of £16 each year.

To submit a synopsis of no more than 100 words with each submission.

To pay the one-act reading fee of £11 or the full-length reading fee of £22 with each submission.

Fees are subject to change without written notice - see our website for the current fees.

The NTP Marketing Strategy

The full synopses of all plays in our current catalogue are on the NTP Web Site and can be accessed from anywhere in the world.

We offer every library in the UK a 50% discount if they stock our collection of plays.

We offer every retail bookstore and specialist theatre bookstores a 50% discount if they stock our collection of plays and 25% discount on all book sales.

Our catalogue is updated regularly and supplied free of charge to professional performance venues, performing companies, libraries and retail book stores.

We have an open invitation to every organizer of a playwriting competition that we will sponsor their competition by way of a guarantee to publish any winning entry.

Does any other publisher match this?
We think not!

What you can expect from us?

Our aim is to provide you with the means to get your work into the marketplace and earning you money fast!

If you've ever submitted a play to any other publisher you will know how slow they can be.

Subject to circumstances beyond our control, we aim to do the following:

1. To respond with a publication decision/offer as soon as possible after receiving your submitted play. The number of submissions varies greatly, so please be patient.
2. To deliver to you a free gratis copy of your published play within one month of receiving the final proof corrected copy;
3. To update our website with a synopsis of your play;
4. To update our catalogue with full details of your play in the next available print run;
5. To place a new release announcement for all newly published plays in trade journals where possible,;
6. To notify you in advance of all productions of your play and to obtain two complimentary tickets so you can see your work in production;
7. To forward all payments to you in accordance with your contract and send you a detailed annual statement of earnings;
8. To send you our newsletters giving details of writing competitions, training courses and other news of interest to writers of theatre.
